CONGRATULATIONS

The Rantings of a Mac Man by Jerry McCorkle

The other day Rhett, for no apparent reason, grabbed onto my hand and would not let it go. I wasn't sure if he wanted me to do something or go somewhere so I tried to follow. We didn't really go anywhere. He moved this way then that way then he would turn and go a different direction. I wondered if we were doing some dance with which I was unfamiliar. I did not mind that we were just meandering and would have been glad to continue our little twirling, except I had to go to the bathroom. One thing was certain however, Rhett was not going to let go of my fingers. He gripped me for all he was worth. (And he's got quite a strong grip for a little guy). I was forced to pry his little hand off mine so I could go. I was afraid he might get upset, but he was fine with it and ran after the other boys.

I just hope that I, as well as you, can hold God's hand the same way that Rhett held mine. We need to hold it with all our might and let Him lead where He may want us to go. He may lead us through the wilderness, He may lead us through the fiery furnace, or even through the valley of the shadow of death. No matter where we go our job is to hold on tight. I like that old hymn about holding to God's unchanging hand, especially the second verse which says "Trust in Him who will not leave you, whatsoever years may bring. If by earthly friends forsaken, still more closely to Him cling. Hold to His hand, to God's unchanging hand." God will never pry your hand away. He will always walk with us and He never has to go to the bathroom.

Congratulations!
