The Rantings of a Mac Man by Jerry McCorkle

I was watching an old movie and I saw a scene that really caught my attention. A country girl from a strongly religious family was invited to become a governess for the daughter of a distant cousin. Her father was immediately against her leaving home. After their family worship time one day she again approaches her father to change his mind. She tells him that during their worship time that she had a "leading" from the Lord within her and she asks him to test it. He agrees to the test and goes to the large family Bible. He orders her to close her eyes, open the Bible, and point to some scripture. The scripture that she selected was where Abraham was giving provisions to and sending away Hagar and Ishmael. Her father took that as a sign that she should leave and go become the governess.

I have never heard of someone using that as a test to discover God's will. In the Old Testament there were loads of times that God used a prophet. There were times when they cast lots or used the Urim and Thummim, although we don't know exactly what they were. There were some rare instances where God used a fleece to show his will, as with Gideon or a moving shadow as with Hezekiah. However, there is no example of God using any of those in the New Testament. Certainly He has never told us to throw open the Bible and pick a scripture. I'm not saying that God could not use that but He never tells us to use such a method. God's instructions to us today are more on a spiritual plane instead of a physical one. The Hebrews writer said "...in these last days God has spoken to us through His Son." In the garden of Gethsemane Jesus told the disciples that the Counselor (Holy Spirit) was coming. I am sure that these two methods are what we should use to determine God's will. Jesus speaks to us through His written word and the Spirit speaks from within to our hearts and minds. We need to be diligent to listen to both.
